"I deliver successful user-centered experiences that align with real-world business needs."

User experience and interaction designer with strong development experience based in Cypress, California. I deliver successful user-centered designs that align with real-world business needs using cost efficient technologies.

Excellent interpersonal and communications skills, able to communicate very complex ideas in simple concepts to a variety of audiences including non-technical and senior business executives.

The experience I've acquired working in high volume B2C & B2B environments plus the demonstrated skills in the last 9 years at Ingram Micro as front end developer and UX designer will be well received by your team.
